decorations were superb, and everything was in keeping with the day celebrated and the guest in whose honor the dinner was given. Three hundred men—men who go to make up much of what is bright and glad and cheerful in New York—and down to a dozen tables. The menus were elaborate affairs, picturing Dr. Depew sented on the wharf at Peekskill Landing fishing. The fee cream was served in a box, having upon its cover a sugared fac-simile of Engine 1999, labelled "Empire State Express."

The president of the club, Mr. Frank R. Lawrence, presided at the banquet, and at his table were Dr. Depew, President Seth Low, of Columbid College, George W. Smalley, Rev. Dr. S. A. Ellot, of Brooklyn; ex-Governor Roswell P. Flower, J. Lindsay Gordon, District-Attorney John R. Fellows, Chester S. Lord, of the Sun; Captain William Henry White, F. C. Wagner, Charles Emory Smith and Augustus Thomas, the playwright.

ist, afr. Depew Said:

"Provincialism and isolation from the orld produce magnificent enthusiasm. The fort of higher civilization and universal owledge is to repress it. Enthusiasm is a the thunder and the lightning, which are the atmosphere and gives new vigor life. In humenting the disappearance of manifestations I often wonder if the saion is lost.

Itles, and yet the American people are calmly analyzing instead of freecoing; they are doubting instead of accepting without question as prophet, sage, leader and savior, a chosen favorite; and they are subjecting them all to the frightful processes of the cathode rays. All of these are unquestionably the results of more universal education, of the universal reading of the newspapers and of electric touch day by day with all the world.

"When Governor Seymour, one of the finest types of the American gentleman who ever lived, was deteated in his last race to succeed himself in the Gubernatorial office, I met him in Albany and supposed because I had been six weeks on the stump speaking after him every night and attacking his position, and himself politically, that there would be, as the girl said about herself and her lover, 'a distance and at the same time a coolness between us.' But he greeted me with the old-time cordinity, and then said:

"You are a young man and I am an old one; you have a talent for public life, have got on very fast and undoubtedly can make a career. But there is nothing in it. I have seen during my thirty years of activity in polities the men so up and down State street to the Capitol who held the attention of the people and seemed destined to be always famous. One by one they were dropped by their party, disappeared from the public view, lost touch with their business or profession and died in obscurity and poverty.

THREE FORGOTTEN HEROES. " 'In the war of 1812 there were three nen who performed a signal service on the deeds that the Legislature sent a special deeds that the Legislature sent a special commission to bring their bodies to Albany, and the remains were met there by all there was of power and authority in the Empire State. The Governor, the Judges, the State officers and the Legislature marched in procession and burled them in the grounds of the Capitol, and now no one knows what part of the Capitol grounds hey are burled in, what were their names with building the new Capital.

whom the other stars blinked in drowsy contrast, at the Lotos Club dinner last evening.

It seems strange that Dr. Depew was compelled to wait until 1896 to have this honor conferred upon him in New York. For six years past he has been given a dlinger by the Montauk Club, of Brooklyn, upon each succeeding anniversary of his birth, while the Union League Club of Chicago, the Benton Club of St. Joseph and other social organizations throughout the country have delighted to honor him. Yet in his home city of New York he had been neglected until last night.

The dinner itself was probably the most pretentious ever given by the club. The decorations were superb, and everything was in keeping with the day celebrated.

There were the regular toasts. Followig the old-time custom of the club, the resident called upon whom he pleased, nd while impromptu speaking is more or ess of a myth, a number of gentlemen are dieged to have been taken by surprise. Among them were nearly all who were cated at the guests' table and Daniel Fisk Kellogg, city editor of the Sun; Colonel Sickels, ex-Consul-General to Siam, and perhaps haif a dozen others. Dr. Depew's speech was, of course, the feature of the evening.
